About the Conference

The tendency to look at literature as a spatially symbolic act took root during the 1970s with the repeated emphasis on a possible interrelation between literature and geography given by the humanistic geographers and literary critics like Yi-Fu Tuan, Edward Relph, David Harvey, Derek Gregory, Nigel Thrift, D. C. D. Pocock, Robert T. Tally Jr., and others. There is a renewed interest in, as Edward W. Soja in Postmodern Geographies asserts, spatialising "the historical narrative, to attach to durée an enduring critical human geography"(1).Robert T.Tally Jr. in his introduction entitled "The Reassertion of Space in Literary Studies" to The Routledge Handbook of literature and Space (2017) writes -

Matters of space and spatiality are, in some senses, nothing new to literature. Setting is a key feature of almost all stories, as events take place in a given place, after all. Distinctive locales, regions, landscape, or other geographical features are often crucial to the meaning and the effectiveness of literary work.However, the last few decades have witnessed a profound reassertion of space in humanities, as matters of space, place, and mapping have come to the forefront of crucial discussions of literature and culture. (1)

Actually, matters of space, spatiality, geography, topography and place have mostly remained neglected in modern scholarship and teaching because in most modern and postmodern literary criticism history and temporality have been dominating discourses. But in recent criticism the "when" and "what" of literature yield place to "where" as Michel Foucault declared the present time as "the epoch of space" (22). Literature reflects a spirit of place and a sense of place because place is known and given meaning when it is felt and closely experienced by human beings living in it. In the Preface of his famous book, Place and Placelessness (1976) Edward Relph criticises the modern environmental discussions which generalise and, resultantly, simplify the landscape in terms of some stereotypical and mechanical structures or models and subsequently "ignore much of the subtlety and significance of everyday experience".

The immense topographical variety of India and the divergent paths of life which thrive on its different terrains have strengthened its possibility to be "spatially symbolic" in many ways. The present conference is meant to address all those issues from different viewpoints. We invite articles which might touch upon, but are not limited to, the following areas -

- ✓ Sense of Place in Indian Writing in English.
- ✓ Spirit of Place in Indian Writing in English.
- ✓ Romantic Geography in Indian Literature.
- √ "The Country and the City" in Indian English Literature.
- ✓ Representation of Rural India in Literature.
- ✓ Urban Space in Indian English Literature.
- ✓ Marginal Geography in Indian Writing.
- ✓ Representation of Periphery in Literature.
- ✓ Animal and Plant Geography in Indian Literature.
- ✓ Representation of Non-place in Literature.
- ✓ Feminist Geography in Literature.
- ✓ Masculinity and Place.
- ✓ Representation of Gay Space in Indian Writing.

A Brief Description of the Programme	Two Day Interntional Level Webinar on "Space, Place & Topography: Geographical Imaginations in Indian Writings in English" was organised by Department of English & IQAC, Seva Bharati Mahavidyalaya, Kapgari, Jhargram, West Bengal, India in collaboration with Department of English & IQAC, Subarnarekha Mahavidyalaya West Bengal, India through Google Meet From 24 th September to 25 th September 2022. Several participants registered for the webinar. The number of paper presenter was
	25. The inaugural speech was delivered by Dr. Samit Kr. Maiti, Organising Secretary & Convenor. The welcome address was given by the Chief Patron Mr. Babulal Mahata, Administrator, Seva Bharati Mahavidyalaya. Six distinguished speakers delivered their lectures on the theme of the webinar. At the end of the each technical session, a question & answer session was conducted. Many faculties from different institutes and research scholars & students raised a number of questions. The respected resource persons answered those questions elaborately. The program was ended by Vote of Thanks delivered by Dr. Kathakali Bandopadhyay
	IQAC Coordinator, Subarnarekha Mahavidyalaya in the last day. At the end of the program, a feedback link was shared in the chat box of Google Meet. All the participants submitted their feedback and received E-Certificates. There was a live telecast of the program in the official Youtube Channel of Seva Bharati Mahavidyalaya.
Outcomes of the Event	Participants gained a deeper analytical understanding of how Indian English literature utilizes geographical settings and imagery to enrich narratives and convey complex themes. The webinar fostered a broader interdisciplinary perspective, integrating insights from geography, environmental studies, and cultural theory into literary analysis. It provided new directions for research, inspiring participants to explore the intersections between geography and literature in Indian English writings more thoroughly.
Valedictory Session/Vote of Thanks	Dr. Kathakali Bandopadhyay, IQAC Coordinator, Subarnarekha Mahavidyalaya
Conclusion	The webinar successfully highlighted the intricate relationship between space, place, and topography in Indian English literature. It showcased how geographical imaginations in these writings are not mere backdrops but integral components that shape narratives, reflect cultural and social realities, and provide critical insights into human-environment interactions.
