About the College

At the dawn of Independence in November 1947, a renowned Agricultural Scientist, working in a high position under the then Bihar Govt., Professor Pabitra Kumar Sen (1906-1997) established Seva Bharati by taking 100 acres of undulated barren land situated in Kapgari and Bagda Mouza from the then Zamindar Jagadish Chandra Deo, Dhabaldeb. Education was unknown in the area. The area was highly drought-prone. The land was undulated, the soil lateritic, and rainfall was normally low, less than 1% of the land was irrigated. Market, road and other infrastructural facilities were absent. The villages were predominantly inhabited by poor people belonging to Scheduled Tribe, Scheduled Castes and other backward communities. Poverty was so widespread that the people lived much below the 'poverty line'. As a result, the area presented a very gloomy picture of increasing joblessness, abysmal poverty and moral degradation The Raja of Chilkigarh, the local Zamindar was good enough to make 40 acres of waste land lying in the boarder of Kapgari and two adjacent villages of Bagda and Panrusuli, available on permanent lease to Prof. Sen to embark upon his cherished work. He purchased another 10 acres from villagers to make the area contiguous and compact Seva Bharati got into a modest start in November 1947 with the help of some of Prof Sen's family members and with cooperation of the local people belonging to Kapgari and nearby, villages. About this time the University of Calcutta came to Prof. Sen's aid, appointing him Khaira Professor of Agriculture in March 1948, thus he was able to pursue this project alongside his university work.

The name "Seva Bharati" suggests that the ideal India can only be constituted on the noble principle of "seva" or service. The word "Bharati" is pregnant with significance; one meaning of "Bharati" is speech, another learning, yet another, the presiding deity of India. The Mahavidyalaya is dedicated to this noble service since its establishment, and it has completed its fifty years of glorious service to the Nation. The motto of the Mahavidyalaya is "Tapasya, Seva, Pragati" - which means that the development of either the Nation or of the individual is a progressive concept, which can be achieved through sincere contemplation and selfless service. The "Pragati" or progress of India would come through the enlightenment of the society. The eight images of flowers scattered within the flower-wheel of the logo symbolize the progressive and full flowering of human potentials along with the growth of life.
