Rural Tourism: An Overview

India being a land of agriculture, gifted with diverse panoramic topography and ecological landscape across the country, thus supporting the livelihood of an 50 percent of the farming community. Agro tourism is a recent offshoot of tourism sector that has grown up to be a potential business in its own space. Rural tourism is a form of nature based tourism that uncovers the rural life, culture, art and heritage at rural locations, thereby favoring the local communities socially and economically. Such form of tourism has created tremendous impact on the local economy and socio-cultural scenario of the concern area on one hand and carries a potential scope for the rural residents on the other hand. It can provide several advantages: income, employment, use accommodation, activities, natural resource conservation, recreation and education. But the main problem for many countries is the low level of farm income. Agro-tourism is a way of sustainable tourist development and multi-activity in rural areas aimed for enhancing higher standards of living for rural communities especially through increased income for people who work in agriculture.

The term agro-tourism emerged in the late twentieth century. It includes agricultural farms that are related to tourism. Agro tourism philosophy aims to increase farmers' incomes and the quality of life of rural society. The World Tourism Organization (WTO) defines rural tourism as tourism that gives to visitors a personalized contact, a taste of physical and human environment of the countryside and as far as possible, allows them to participate in the activities, traditions and lifestyles of local people. The Government of India (GoI) defines rural tourism as any form of tourism that showcases the rural life, art, culture and heritage at rural locations, thereby benefiting the local community economically and socially as well as enabling interaction between the tourists and the locals for a more enriching tourism experience. Thus, rural tourism can be defined as tourism in country side which is intrinsically related to ecotourism, cultural tourism and agro tourism. Agro tourism educates people and society about agriculture and contributes to the local economy; it reduces the level of urbanization as people work and earn more from agro tourism; it promotes local products and create added value through direct marketing and stimulates economic activities in order to increase benefits in societies where the agro tourism is developed. The reasons for the development of agro-tourism as: educate deliberately by maintaining links between sectors interested in the local society and visitors; the positive impact on improving the health of visitors; creating relaxation; it constitutes an adventure; it determines enjoying natural food; it could be a unique experience and it is a form of leisure tourism.

Ecotourism is a sustainable form of natural resource-based tourism that focuses primarily on experiencing and learning about nature, and which is ethically managed to be low-impact, non-consumptive and locally oriented (control, benefits and scale). It typically occurs in natural areas, and should contribute to the conservation or preservation of such areas.

Cultural tourism covers all aspects of travel where visitors can learn about another area's history and way of life. Thus, cultural factors in the context of tourism include the entertainment, food, drink, hospitality, architecture, manufactured and hand-crafted products of a destination, and all other characteristics of a destination's way of life.

Agriculture tourism is an enterprise which combines elements of agriculture and tourism. Example, retail markets, petting zoos, fee-fishing, festivals and fairs, tours, agriculture related museums, agriculture related festivals and fairs. Agricultural tourism as a combination of natural settings and products of agricultural operations combined within a tourism experience. It includes providing tourists with opportunities to experience a broad spectrum of agriculturally based products and services ranging from fruit stand shopping to winery, from farm based bed and breakfast accommodation to tourist participation in cattle drives. Agrotourism, farm tourism or agricultural tourism is the process of attracting visitors and travelers to agricultural areas, generally for educational and recreational purposes. Benefits of Agro-Tourism Centers Agro-Tourism has the potential to change the economic nature of traditional agriculture. The benefits of agro-tourism development are manifold. It would bring many direct and indirect benefits to the farmers and rural people.

Socio-economic impacts of Rural-tourism

- Employment to youth: Rural tourism contributes positively to the increase in employment and income levels of the youths.
- Boost to the Handloom and Cottage industry: Traditional attires, especially of women are found to a delightful attraction for incoming tourist both domestic and outsiders. People, often found to be interested in purchasing the garments, which is helping in gearing up the production of local handloom products.

- Preservation of natural resources: Tourism in local areas helps in preserving the rural eco system, since it forms the base to the tourism sector, also a part of the development funds are used in creating social forests and preserving existing forest.
- Exchange of revenue: Employment avenues created by tourism demands help in earning domestic income.
- Exposure to their religion: Tourism avenues have a given a due introduction to this almost hidden but old culture. Tourist interaction has provided the proper exposure to the world outside.

The Scope of Rural Tourism agri-tourism, the costs of accommodation, food, and travel will be very low.

This is to enhance the tourist population. The current concept of travel and tourism is just to urban areas which are just a section of the population. Hence, the Agri-tourism will take travel and tourism to a huge population which will enhance the scope of tourism.

- The urban population, which have their roots in the rural areas will always show interest in learning about the sources of food, wood, languages, arts, crafts, dresses, etc. Agritourism will satisfy the urban population who are curious to learn about farming.
- Rural areas will give an opportunity for recreation at a low cost to the children, middle and low-class families. The festivals, dresses, games which are conducted as a part of agri-tourism will entertain the whole family.
- The people living in urban areas have a lifestyle that includes stress due to which the average life span has decreased. The individuals trying to earn more to live a comfortable life, due to which they work for more hours and miss peace in their lives.

- Agri-tourism will help these people to achieve peace as it would be away from all these polluted areas.
- The urban population is searching for the means of healthy living and interaction. Villagers would help them to know about their medical knowledge which is indigenous. The foods which are cultivated organically have much demand among the urban populations due to which they are approaching the villages for the solutions.
- The urban population who have a busy lifestyle are always trying to be close to nature in their free time. Mountains, crops, rivers, lakes, birds will make the urban population forget about their busy life and be close to nature.
- The urban population is overcrowded and hence as they do not want to disturb each other's peace, they are going beyond the cities for the sake of resorts. Good efforts are made to create the village atmosphere in the name of resorts in which farmhouses are built which would be the same as the farms.
- The businesses of the farm will have an opportunity to sustain themselves for a long time.

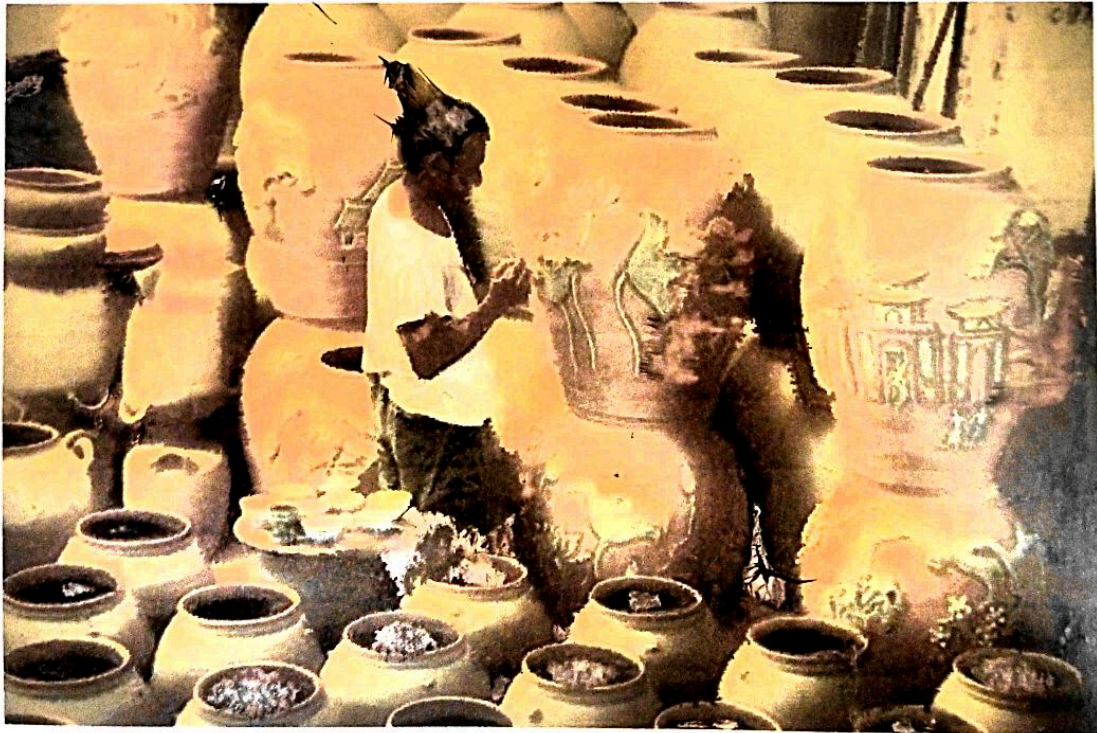

Benefits of Rural Tourism for the communities:

- It generates supplementary income for the local business as they need to provide services for visitors or tourists.
- There would be an upgrade in the facilities of the communities for the sake of tourists.
- There would be an improvement in the protection of the landscapes in the rural areas as it needs to serve the tourists.
- The traditions which are followed locally in terms of art and craft will be preserved as they will have an opportunity to create markets if tourism is developed.
- This promotes inter-regional and intercultural communication.
- There would be an increase in awareness about the issues related to agriculture and also the values followed.

- The local products and services which are part of agriculture can be promoted.
- The rural economy can be strengthened which would create income through jobs.

Benefits of Agriculture Tourism for Tourism Operators:

- There would be a chance to mix the services and products of tourism to visitors.
- Tourism will be improved even in rural areas.
- Tourism markets will have a unique place in rural areas
- The length of the season will increase mainly in the off peak business times which are traditionally followed.
- The currency, which is non-local will be flowing into the businesses which are set up in the rural regions.

Course Report

I feel that post COVID, when tourism is reviving, this is a right timing for increasing awareness about the importance of conserving Rural India and fostering village life. These competitions are rightly timed to motivate and encourage communities to celebrate their traditional, cultural and environmental heritage and also offer a privileged opportunity to travelers to visit and stay in their villages. The growth and sustainability of Rural tourism depends mainly on what principles it has been developed and when communities are collectively working towards using tourism as a tool for overall development of their village.

Jhargram district is known to all as JUNGAL MAHAL. Red soil, deep forest, wild animal and rural heritage life is the treasury of Jungal Mahal. So many scopes are here for developing Rural and Eco tourism. Seva Bharati Mahavidyalaya has decided to start a certificate course on Rural Tourism for the ongoing students and help them to create and develop rural tourism business or find jobs in this area. In this session 33 students enrolled and they successfully completed this course. We hope the students will success in this field.
